“ Paw Paw Miller will be remembered by all who were fortunate to know him .He was a dedicated loving husband who still loved to talk of his loving wife and missed her daily . A devoted father of two beautiful girls Julia and Kathy who he adored .And brought many grandchildren into his life making it complete. Then came the great grand children whom Charles truly cherished and loved . What a proud PAW PAW to him it was an honor to be a father and paw paw not a duty.When I first met paw paw it was when my son Matthew was engaged o his beautiful granddaughter Elizabeth .What I remember and will miss the most is his smile .He had a smile that would warm your heart . I got to chat with Charles on a couple of occasions we both shared a bad habit of smoking .So we would go outside and talk .He spoke fondly of his wife and family how proud he was all of them and the love that his grandchildren and great grandchildren brought into his life . He was able to attend Matthew and Elizabeths wedding making her wedding day complete .It was then that a photo was taken that captured that magical smile that I will always remember a beautiful moment expressing the pride and love that he got to share on his last granddaughters wedding day . He was delighted when they gave him another great grandson to love .Bo and Erica were blessed with a miracle baby they call Blakeley .Who decided to come early and truly a living doll who was the last to meet Paw Paw .Even tho his health was declining I know this brought joy to his soul . Charles had one more on the way by his oldest granddaughter Kristina . But GOD called him home before his next great granddaughter was due .But he had the joy of knowing that his family was still growing and he knew his daughters and his son in laws would take good care of their families .For now they get to be the grandfathers and grandmothers and one day may they have Gods Blessings and be great grandparents just like his wife and he had done .Paw Paw you will be missed daily and forever loved but never forgotten.
